ADMINISTRATION

GLEN TAYLOR

On March 23, 1995, Glen Taylor closed the deal that made him majority owner of the Minnesota Timberwolves. On April 22, 1998, Taylor was awarded a WNBA team to be operated by the Timberwolves which became the Minnesota Lynx. Besides being an NBA franchise owner, Taylor has a list of titles that already includes international businessman, state senator, entrepreneur, philanthropist and executive of the year.

Taylor is CEO and Chairman of the Board of Taylor Corporation, located in Mankato, Minn., 75 miles southwest of the Twin Cities. The Taylor companies, which are involved in the printing, marketing and electronics industries, include more than 70 operating divisions in 17 states, three Canadian provinces, the United Kingdom, Australia and Mexico.

Taylor built his company from modest beginnings. While a student at Mankato State University in 1959, he took a part-time job at Carlson Wedding Service. Fifteen years later, in 1974, he acquired a majority interest in the company, laying the foundation for what would soon grow into Taylor Corporation. Taylor Corporation is the nation's largest printer of wedding invitations, controlling more than half that market.

Taylor's business savvy has been recognized by Corporate Report magazine, which honored him as its Executive of the Year, and the Sales and Marketing Executives of Minneapolis/St. Paul who awarded him with its Sales Executive of the Year Award.

Taylor was elected to the Minnesota Senate in 1980, where he served until 1990. He became assistant Senate minority leader in 1982. From 1984 to 1986, he served as Senate minority leader. While in the Senate, Taylor was instrumental in providing leadership in the areas of higher education, child care and economic development policies. Nationally, Taylor has provided expert testimony on business and child care issues to the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives and served as a committee chair on the 1991 Commission on Reform and Efficiency (CORE).

Through personal involvement, Taylor has remained active in many civic and charitable causes. In Mankato, he has served as YMCA President, Chamber of Commerce Director, Mankato Jaycees President and United Way Campaign Chairman. He has also served on his church's board of deacons and board of trustees and on the Mankato State University Foundation board of directors. In addition, Taylor has served as the director of the Minnesota Business Partnership, director of the Greater Minnesota Corporation and president of the International Thermographers Association.

Taylor was born April 20, 1941, and raised on a farm 60 miles west of his current home in Mankato. He graduated from Comfrey (Minn.) High School in 1959. In just three years, he earned his bachelor's degree from Mankato State University. He later continued his education at the Harvard Graduate School of Business. Taylor continues to live in Mankato with his wife, Bonnie.

BRIAN AGLER

During the 1999 Minnesota Lynx season, Lynx head coach and general manager Brian Agler started Minnesota's inaugural season winning the first two games of the season in impressive fashion making Minnesota the only WNBA expansion team to start its first year 2-0. Minnesota ended its inaugural season campaign with a 15-17 record finishing fourth in the Western Conference and just missing the WNBA Playoffs. Agler's career record is 345-184 (.678).

Agler was named head coach and general manager of the Minnesota Lynx on November 17, 1998. He joined Minnesota in its inaugural season after serving as head coach of the American Basketball League's (ABL) Columbus Quest.

Agler, 41, led the Quest to back-to-back Eastern Conference regular-season titles and back-to-back ABL World Championships in 1997 and 1998. In addition, Agler was the ABL Eastern Conference All-Star Head Coach for both 1997 and 1998 and earned ABL Coach of the Year honors for 1996-97. In his two plus seasons with the Quest, Agler compiled an 82-22 overall record (including a 10-4 playoff mark). The Quest was 41-10 in 1996-1997, 36-11 in 1997-1998 and began the 1998-1999 ABL season 5-1 under Agler before he resigned his position on November 23 to devote himself full-time to the Lynx. Adding to all merits, Agler was also the only person in the ABL to carry the dual role of head coach and general manager. He also had the most victories at the professional level while with the Columbus Quest in 1997.

Prior to his position within the ABL, Agler spent 17 seasons coaching among the college ranks, 15 seasons as a head coach. Agler boasts an impressive 248-145 (.648) collegiate career record. Most recently he spent three seasons (1993-1996) as the head women's basketball coach at Kansas State University. From 1984-1988, he was the head women's basketball coach at Northeast Oklahoma A&M junior college where he compiled a record of 125-42 over five seasons. In 1988 he guided the Lady Norse to a third-place finish in the national tournament and enjoyed his best season in 1985-86 when NEO-A&M ranked second nationally with a record of 30-2. In 1988, Agler took over as the head women's basketball coach at the University of Missouri-Kansas City and in five seasons was 85-54 taking the Kangaroos from a 9-16 record to a squad finishing 24-7. Under his direction, the Roos led the NCAA in scoring defense three consecutive seasons from 1990-1992, and set an all-time NCAA team defensive record in 1991 allowing only 51.8 points per game.

Agler started all 112 games during his four year college career at Wittenburg University in Springfield, Ohio. As a freshman, he led the Tigers to the 1977 NCAA Division III National Championship. Agler, Wittenburg's all-time career assists leader with 481, scored a total 1,243 career points while leading his team to a 91-21 record (.813) over four years and was inducted into the Wittenburg University Athletic Hall of Honor in 1995. In 1980, he received a Bachelor of Arts degree in Special Education and Physical Education. Agler is a member of the Women's Basketball Coaches Association and currently resides with his wife Robin, son Bryce and daughter Taylor in Chanhassen, Minn. He enjoys playing golf in his free time.

LYNX

HISTORY

1999 SEASON IN REVIEW

June (4-3) The Lynx opened their inaugural season with double digit wins over Detroit and Utah to become the first expansion team in WNBA history to start the season 2-0. The Lynx then gave a battle to the two-time defending WNBA Champion Houston Comets on June 19 at Target Center. At the time, it was a showdown between the league's only remaining undefeated teams (Minnesota 2-0, Houston 3-0). Minnesota fell short, losing 69-55 for its first loss of the season. The Lynx then went on a three-game Western road trip finishing 2-1, losing in Sacramento to the Monarchs and regrouping to defeat Los Angeles and Utah. Versus the Utah Starzz on June 26, Minnesota set a WNBA record for most three-point field goals made in a game when they connected on 14 three-pointers. The month ended with a loss to Sacramento at Target Center, but again WNBA history was made. Minnesota and Sacramento combined to set a WNBA record hitting 21 three-point field goals for the game, (Minnesota 11, Sacramento 10). Tonya Edwards paced Minnesota averaging 17.7 ppg and 2.7 rpg. Brandy Reed chipped in 13.7 ppg and led the team in rebounding averaging 4.6 rpg. Katie Smith added 12.8 ppg and 2.8 rpg after missing the first two games of the season recovering from knee surgery.

July (7-7, 11-10) Minnesota opened the month of July with a tough 81-77 double overtime loss to the Los Angeles Sparks at Target Center. The loss dropped the Lynx home record under .500 for the first time (2-3). Minnesota bounced back to win three of its next four games. Minnesota defeated Phoenix at home before going on a four-game road trip, the longest of the season. Minnesota lost to Houston at the Compaq Center, but recovered the next night beating expansion rival Orlando at the O-rena. The Lynx then had another set of back-to-back road games, first winning at the buzzer on a last second, running jump shot by Brandy Reed to defeat the New York Liberty 58-56 at Madison Square Garden and then losing to the Rockers in Cleveland. The Lynx then enjoyed a three-game winning streak, their best stretch of the season, winning at home against New York and Sacramento and going on the road to defeat the Sting in Charlotte. Minnesota struggled towards the end of the month losing four of its last five games starting with back-to-back losses at Target Center against Washington and Houston. The Lynx squeaked out a win at Sacramento but suffered its worst loss of the season, a 33-point defeat, at Phoenix. The month closed for Minnesota with the sixth home loss of the season against Charlotte, dropping Minnesota's home record below .500 for the second time (5-6). Brandy Reed paced the Lynx in July averaging 15.8 ppg and 6.6 rpg. Reed led Minnesota in scoring nine times during the month, scoring 20 or more points on six different occasions. Tonya Edwards added 14.9 ppg and 3.5 rpg while shooting .323 from 3-point land. Katie Smith contributed 10.0 ppg and 3.2 rpg.

August (4-7, 15-17) The Lynx opened their August with an impressive 17-point win over Phoenix at home to bring its Target Center record back to the .500 mark (6-6). But Minnesota would follow the victory with its worst losing skid of the season, dropping the next four games to Detroit, Los Angeles, Utah and Phoenix. The 80-70 loss at Utah on Aug. 7 saw Minnesota's record fall below .500 (12-13) for the first time. The loss at Phoenix two days later on Aug. 9 was the first time all season Minnesota's road record dipped below .500 (6-7). The Lynx ended its losing streak with a win at home versus Utah in a game that saw Katie Smith score a WNBA career-best 27 points, but the Lynx suffered another slide losing three of its next four games. The Houston Comets completed the season sweep of the Lynx with a 71-53 victory in Houston (Aug. 14). The Lynx vindicated an earlier loss to Cleveland by defeating the Rockers at Target Center (Aug. 16), bringing their home record above the .500 mark for the first time since July 23. Minnesota then lost on the road to Los Angeles dropping their road record three games below .500 (6-9) and officially eliminating the Lynx from the playoffs. Minnesota ended its regular season home schedule with a three-point overtime loss to Orlando (Aug. 20), but closed the 1999 inaugural season with a win at Washington the very next day, ending a six-game road losing streak. Katie Smith led Minnesota in August averaging 13.2 ppg and 2.6 rpg. Tonya Edwards added 12.9 ppg and 4.0 rpg, while Kristin Folkl scored in double-figures in four of Minnesota's last five games, averaging 13.2 ppg and 7.0 rpg over that stretch.

LEAGUE HISTORY AND INFORMATION

On April 24, 1996 women's basketball announced "We Got Next" as the NBA Board of Governors approved the concept of a Women's National Basketball Association (WNBA) to begin play in June 1997.

Since that day in 1996 there have been many firsts for the WNBA -- Val Ackerman – the first president of the WNBA, Sheryl Swoopes - the first player signed to the WNBA, Cynthia Cooper - the league's first Most Valuable Player, and the Houston Comets – the first (and only) WNBA Champions.

However, the very first for the league was a "to-do list." With less than 15 months to tipoff, a league of its own began to unfold for the WNBA as each task was completed. The history of the WNBA follows:

On the Air . . .
Before a player was signed or a staff member was in place, the league announced its broadcast partnerships with NBC, ESPN, and Lifetime. It was decided that the WNBA season would be played in the summer when the sports calendar was less crowded and the games could be televised live and in prime time on a consistent basis. During a successful inaugural season, more than 50 million viewers watched WNBA games on the three networks. By 1999, WNBA games were broadcast in over 125 countries with 37 broadcasters in 17 languages. New countries for the 1999 season included Germany, Ghana, Haiti, Italy, Lithuania, Uruguay, the United Kingdom and Canada. Canada aired a weekly Friday night game on CTV Sportsnet. Nearly one million viewers per week watched the WNBA on national television during the second and third seasons.

The WNBA delivers an audience unique in sports. In-arena, gender breakdown is approximately 70-30 female-male. The TV audience is about 50-50 female-male, with a strong percentage of non-adult viewers.

The Players and the Teams. . .
The first of the player signings was announced on October 23, with Sheryl Swoopes and Rebecca Lobo joining the league. The duo were soon followed by Ruthie Bolton-Holifield, Lisa Leslie, Cynthia Cooper, Michele Timms (the first international player) and many more WNBA hopefuls.

Eight teams were announced for the league's inaugural season. The Eastern Conference consisted of the Charlotte Sting, Cleveland Rockers, Houston Comets and New York Liberty while the Western Conference was comprised of the Los Angeles Sparks, Phoenix Mercury, Sacramento Monarchs and Utah Starzz. On January 16, 1997, the first 16 players were assigned to teams, and on February 27 an Elite Draft added two more players to each team, increasing team rosters to four. The Comets selected Tina Thompson, the Pac-10 Conference's leading scorer, with the first pick of the Inaugural WNBA Draft. Margo Dydek, a 7'2" center from Poland, was selected first in the 1998 Draft by the Starzz, and two-time Associated Press Women's Basketball Player of the Year Chamique Holdsclaw was the Washington Mystics' number one selection in the 1999 Draft.

Since the inaugural season, the WNBA has expanded from eight teams to 16, with the Detroit Shock and Washington Mystics joining the league in 1998, the Minnesota Lynx and Orlando Miracle in 1999, and the Indiana Fever, Miami Sol, Portland Fire, and Seattle Storm in 2000. The 2000 season will see 176 women play professional basketball in 256 regular season WNBA games (schedule history: 32 games in 2000 and 1999, 30 in 1998, 28 in 1997).

With such tremendous growth, the WNBA and the Women's National Basketball Players Association (WNBPA) announced on April 29, 1999 the league's first collective bargaining agreement – a first of its kind in women's team sports.

The Logos and the Uniforms . . .
With players and teams in place, the league began its next task of creating logos and uniforms. The red, white and blue official WNBA logo – "Logo Woman" – was selected from about 50 different designs. After developing an extensive list of choices, the team names were selected by the league and the teams based on numerous factors, including: a tie to the NBA team name in that market, a link to a key characteristic of each city or state and/or the creation of a name fitting the current sports landscape. The uniforms also underwent several designs, and on May 21 the WNBA unveiled the team uniforms - two shorts silhouettes and three jerseys.

LEAGUE HISTORY AND INFORMATION

It's a Ball Game . . .
The WNBA game consists of a 30-second clock, a 19-foot, 9-inch three-point line, two 20-minute halves, eleven-player rosters and a collegiate-regulation size ball. The WNBA's signature orange and oatmeal basketball by Spalding is 28.5 inches in circumference and one inch smaller than the NBA's regulation ball.

Millions of Fans Join In . . .
The inaugural WNBA season tipped off on June 21, 1997 with the New York Liberty taking on the Los Angeles Sparks at the Great Western Forum in Inglewood, California. A crowd of 14,284 watched as Sparks guard Penny Toler scored the first basket in WNBA history. The Liberty defeated the Sparks 67-57. Then on August 22, the WNBA league attendance surpassed the one million mark at America West Arena in Phoenix. The league concluded a successful inaugural season with a league-wide average attendance of 9,669. In year two, the average attendance increased to 10,869 and by the third year the WNBA had set a new attendance record for the league and women's professional team sports by drawing 1,959,733 fans during the regular season. The 1999 league-wide attendance average of 10,207 fans per game marked the second consecutive season that the WNBA averaged crowds of more than 10,000. Over four million fans have attended WNBA games since the league's inaugural season in 1997. In 1999, the WNBA drew 99 crowds in excess of 10,000 fans. The WNBA's inaugural season included 41 crowds of more than 10,000 fans, while the 1998 season had 73.

Fans Get Connected . . .
In addition to television, the league website, WNBA.com, is an important tool in reaching fans. The site (www.wnba.com) offers the latest WNBA news, multimedia coverage, fan interaction with players and more. The WNBA was the first major sports league to provide complete live cybercast of a draft exclusively over the Internet. For its exclusive live cybercast of the 1999 WNBA Draft, WNBA.com registered 376,100 impressions, a 194 percent increase over the 1998 WNBA Draft (128,000 impressions), breaking all previous records for most traffic on any given day in the site's three-year history.

In the Community . . .
For the WNBA, the focus is two primary outreach initiatives: WNBA Be Active, a grassroots program that targets boys and girls ages 11-14 with the goal of encouraging them to be physically active; and WNBA Breast Health Initiative, a partnership with the National Alliance of Breast Cancer Organizations (NABCO) to draw national attention to the issue of breast cancer and the importance of early detection through the 3-Point Play for Good Breast Health – clinical breast exam, self-exam, and mammography.

League Showcases All-Stars . . .
On July 14, 1999, the league held the Inaugural WNBA All-Star Game at Madison Square Garden. The sold-out game (18,649) showcased the incredible sportsmanship, teamwork, player enthusiasm, fan involvement, and in-arena excitement that has made the WNBA so special. The Western Conference All-Stars – led by the game's Most Valuable Player and Los Angeles Sparks center Lisa Leslie – defeated the Eastern Conference team, 79-61. The 2000 WNBA All-Star Game will be held at the America West Arena in Phoenix on July 17.

We Got Game . . .
Women's basketball has come a long way since its beginnings in 1892 when Senda Berenson adapted James Naismith's basketball rules for women. And with the continued growth of the WNBA, it plans to go even further. For more information on the WNBA and its history, log onto http://www.wnba.com.

The WNBA and NIKE teamed to promote the health and fitness initiative, WNBA Be Active Presented by Nike. Be Active is a 16-city grassroots initiative that encourages young people to adhere to the program's core message – "Play Fit, Stay Fit". Held in each WNBA market during the offseason between January and April 2000, Be Active features 90-minute clinics aimed at boys and girls, ages 11-14. Each clinic, conducted by one of the four national spokeswomen and a local WNBA player, focuses on three key areas of fitness: endurance, strength and flexibility. The program's national spokespeople - Team Be Active- are Cynthia Cooper (Houston Comets), Jennifer Gillom (Phoenix Mercury), Nykesha Sales (Orlando Miracle), and Suzie McConnell Serio (Cleveland Rockers). Participants also attend seminars conducted by health and fitness professionals on the importance of health and nutrition. The clinics were developed in collaboration with the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports.

To broaden the reach and ensure a year-round fitness message, WNBA Be Active Presented by Nike has expanded the overall program with new in-season elements that include fitness clinics for women and youth, a National Be Active Day, in-arena promotions, court refurbishment projects and content on WNBA.com.

SEARS WNBA BREAST HEALTH AWARENESS

Now in its fourth year, Sears WNBA Breast Health Awareness is a partnership with the National Alliance of Breast Cancer Organizations (NABCO). The initiative draws national attention to the issue of breast health and the importance of early detection through the 3-Point Play for Good Breast Health – clinical breast exam, self-exam, and mammography.

This season, the program will continue to promote breast health through awareness nights in all 16 WNBA arenas. Mammogram information and breast health guides will be distributed and through its commitment, Sears will donate $.50 to NABCO for every fan that attends a Breast Health Awareness night. The funds will be used to support breast health services for medically underserved women. Breast health public service announcements will air on national television and in-arenas.

LYNX COMMUNITY RELATIONS

BE ACTIVE

The Lynx enhance the WNBA's health and fitness initiative, "BE ACTIVE", by hosting NIKE Be Active clinics throughout the year. During the season, Lynx players and coaches speak at Lynx Developmental Camps for Girls and before each Lynx home game when a member of the Lynx team appears at a mini-clinic for fan groups to promote fitness.

BREAST HEALTH INITIATIVE

The Lynx donated $1 from every paid ticket during the 1999 inaugural season to breast cancer research in Minnesota. $163,993 was raised through season tickets, group tickets and single-game tickets along with the proceeds raised through the Lynx fundraiser, the Allina Hospitals & Clinics "Great Basketball Dribble". During the 2000 season, the Lynx will continue to donate $1 from every ticket to charitable causes and organizations. Half will be put towards breast cancer research in Minnesota and the other half will be used for local charitable initiatives.

BLUE RIBBON COMMITTEE

The Minnesota Lynx Blue Ribbon Committee was created to serve as Lynx good-will ambassadors. The committee is comprised of women from media, health, philanthropic and educational professions. The group helps gather potential recipients of the Lynx Blue Ribbon Committee Grant for breast cancer research and early detection organizations. In addition, the committee serves as a liaison for other Lynx marketing opportunities including the "Great Basketball Dribble".

ALLINA HOSPITALS & CLINICS/MINNESOTA LYNX "GREAT BASKETBALL DRIBBLE" IN SUPPORT OF SEARS WNBA BREAST HEALTH AWARENESS

The Lynx primary fundraiser with an emphasis on FUN! For a $25 participation fee, fans are invited to join the Lynx team members and staff as well as local Twin Cities celebrities in a basketball dribble (or walk) through the streets of downtown Minneapolis. The event culminates at Target Center with an exclusive a Lynx practice. The proceeds of this event benefit breast cancer research in Minnesota.

BREAST HEALTH AWARENESS EDUCATION

During the 1999 season, the Lynx held a breast health seminar and continue to seek out opportunities to educate women about breast cancer. The Lynx will continue to host a breast cancer awareness night during a regular season home game.

INTO THE COMMUNITY

During the 1999 season, local appearances were made about every two days. Along with Lynx Basketball Camps for girls and corporate appearances, the players attended the Minnesota State Fair, the Special Olympics and numerous hospital and shelter visits. During the off-season the players made appearances daily. Due to the positive response for Lynx player and coach appearances a hotline has been established to request appearances and donations. The Community Relations Hotline phone number is 612-673-8397.

TICKETS FOR KIDS

Season ticket holders and Lynx supporters purchased home tickets for the Lynx Tickets For Kids donation program. During the 1999 season, more than 34 charitable organizations, including non-profit agencies, schools and shelters throughout the state of Minnesota attended the games through the donation of the Lynx Tickets For Kids program. Most groups were comprised of women and children and may not have otherwise been able to enjoy the games without complimentary tickets. Season-ticket holders also donate unused tickets to this program for distribution.

About Nike Be Active...

"Your body is just like your mind--if you don't use it and exercise--you will lose it." Grace Daley

"I would tell them (kids) to find an activity that they like that is outdoors such as swimming, playing tag or basketball. Also, find friends that enjoy doing the same things together. That way you will have fun, too." Marla Brumfield

"Make good habits now. Eat right and be fit because you can't achieve your dreams if you are not healthy." Angie Potthoff
